

Writing the Dissertation

The submission of a written Dissertation is the next step in a program leading to the award of a graduate degree. The manuscript is a scholarly statement of the results of a long period of research and related preparation, undertaken to fulfill partially the requirements for an advanced degree. It is made available for public use in the University Library, microfilmed for archival preservation and is published by University Microfilms International (UMI).

The University has established guidelines for uniformity in the physical format of the manuscript. The intent of the Manual is to assist candidates in the preparation and typing of Dissertations submitted for advanced degrees in the schools or colleges of Florida International University (FIU). See guidelines for writing the Dissertation: FIU Regulations for Thesis/Dissertation Preparation Manual The Manual includes a flow chart proceeding from the development of a Dissertation topic to its oral Defense.

General Guidelines

The student's work is carried out under the direction and supervision of his/her Dissertation Chairperson and the Committee members who supervise it for the intellectual content. The Dissertation Chairperson and Committee members may specify certain aspects of style, such as footnote style and placement, and the manner in which references are cited. Candidates are urged to consult with their Dissertation Chairperson early in the preparation of the manuscript regarding both the subject and the general plan of investigation as well as style preferences. Style manuals are available for purchase at the FIU Bookstore. As to format, the regulations included in the FIU Regulations for Thesis/Dissertation Preparation Manual supersede any style manual instructions. Format includes manuscript arrangement, organization of specific preliminary pages, spacing, typeface, margins, page number order, page number placement, and the requirement for permission to reproduce copyrighted material. No joint authorship will be accepted.

Students should not use dissertations previously filed, or out-of-date FIU regulations for format examples, because changes are made from time to time, and candidates are responsible for following the requirements in effect when the manuscript is filed.

Questions that arise in the preparation of final manuscript copies, but which are not covered in the Manual, may be discussed with the Dissertation Chairperson. Early consultation with the Chairperson is particularly helpful if, after reading the regulations carefully, there are questions about special material or about the need for permission to reproduce copyrighted material to be used in the Dissertation.

In addition to written guidelines, the University Graduate School provides assistance through a writing consultant. Check the University Graduate School web site for further information.
